OREGON.

A musical convention is to be held at Oregon City sometime next month.

Rev. S. Bowers, of Salem, was presented with a fine suit of clothes a few evening since by his friends.

Salem has a young painter named Parrot, whose pieces give promise of success in his chosen branch of the fine arts.

The Albany Democrat says: "The Gov. Grover is well patronized. She now arrives at this city the same day upon which she leaves Portland."

The Odd Fellows of Oregon City, propose to celebrate the anniversary of the order in an appropriate manner on the 26th inst., at the Hall of Oregon Lodge, No. 3.

The Circuit Court for Clackamas county, Judge Upton presiding, convenes on Monday, the 28th inst. We learn that there is but a small docket on file up to this date.

Governor Grover has appointed Samuel E. Carpenter and Henry L. Roche Commissioners of deeds for Oregon, the former to reside in Cincinnati, Ohio, and the latter in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Governor Grover has appointed John Beach, of Washington county, a member of the Board of Commissioners of the Washington County-Nehalem Valley and Astoria Wagon Road, vice Wm. E. Smith, resigned.

The Reporter says: We learn that the W. D. Clark farm, at North Yamhill, was sold at Sheriff sale this week, for $6,000 coin. This price for little more than 400 acres may be considered pretty well for a forced sale these hard times.

Dr. Merrick, D. G. C. for Oregon and Washington Territory, instituted at Monroe, Benton county, Oregon, on the evening of the 16th inst., Crystal Encampment, No. 15, C. R. C. The following are the elected officers: J. M. Wells, C.; J. W. Starr, J. C.; John Belknap, R. S; C. M. Boswell, F. S; Annie Stewart, T.; Wilson Stewart, C. H.; Mary Starr, I. G.; Thomas Welcher, O. G.

At the annual meeting of St. Paul's Parish, at the Church in Oregon City, on last Monday evening, the following gentlemen were elected vestrymen for the ensuing year: Messrs. John Myers, Robert Caufield, H. L. Kelly, Frank H. West, John Shannon, Reuben Smith and A. Noltner. At a meeting of the vestry held on the same evening, Mr. Myers was elected Senior Warden; H. L. Kelly Junior Warden; A. Noltner Secretary and Mr. Myers Treasurer.

The Albany Register says: "The opening of bids for constructing the Albany & Santiam Canal, transpired at the office of the Company in this city on the 15th inst. A large number of bids for this city, Portland, and elsewhere, were opened. Contracts were granted to A. B. Morris, Olney Frey and Benjamin Turley, they having given in the lowest bids. Work under the contracts will begin on the first of June, to be fully completed by the first of November. The bids were much lower than expected.

THE TERRITORIES.

The thermometer indicated 73 degrees in the shade at Olympia on the 10th.

There were 210,000 hoop poles sent from Olympia to Seattle last Tuesday for shipment on the bark Union to San Francisco.

An Olympia firm has the contract for furnishing Montgomery's railroad hands with beef during the coming season at 7 cents per pound.

The first pack train of the season arrived at Boise on the 9th inst., from Kelton. It brought 6,000 pounds of assorted merchandise.

A side-whiskered fop at Salt Lake was shot for a rabit, and the Coroner said it was all right, and that he knew of a dozen others that ought to be shot.

John Carroy has located a new road from Boise City to the stage ranch, in Jordan Valley on the Winnemucca road, and propose to direct the travel and freight that way.

The Colonist says that the late garrison of San Juan Island, are on board H. M. S. Scout, and will start for home, under command of Captain Stuart, by the next mail steamer.

That part of the Washington Territory penitentiary contracted for, is to be completed for the reception of prisoners in seven months. The site is on McNeil's Island, six miles from Steilacoom.

Its name was Buck, and it was the first boy baby born in Maricopa county, Arizona. It weighed 18 pounds on the day of its debut into the world, and shot at the old Buck (its father) when it was three years old.

A Montana man, on suicide intent, threw himself from an overhanging rock a distance of 40 feet to the sand below. He struck on his head, bounced over on his feet, gave an Indian yell, said he was too good a man to die, and went back to Helena and licked a Chinaman.

The contract for the construction of the wing, with three tiers of cells—forty-two in number—of the Washington Territory Penitentiary, near Steilacoom, was let to Mr. I. C. Ellis, for $37,800. The bid also includes the construction of a wharf to deep water. There were three other bids that ranged above Mr. Ellis, from $50 to $150.

A dispensation for the organization of a new Chapter in Olympia, has been issued by authority of M. E. Josiah H. Drummond, General Grand High Priest of of the General Grand Royal Arch Chapter of the United States, under the distinctive title of Olympia Royal Arch Chapter No. 2. Companion Thomas M. Reed has been appointed M. E High Priest, Companion Elisha P. Ferry, E. King, and Companion Wm. E. Boone, E. Scribe.

Judge McFadden, delegate to Congress from Washington Territory, having been notified that a cadetship at the Annapolis Naval Academy lent his disposal, here is what the son of Mr. Brown, of the Dispatch, says about the position: "The Judge has no one selected for the place and we hope he will make no nomination. The appointment is a delusion and a snare to any boy who accepts it from this Territory, unless he has powerful friends in the Government who will see to him. The Navy has no use for one tenth of the number of officers which are provided for at the Academy, and hence the surplus must be got rid of by hook or crook; cadets from a distance being almost certain to be made the victims. During the last three years Mr. Garfielde has nominated three of as promising youths as could be found in the Territory, all of whom were rejected and sent home at their own expense as they came, which was not less than $500 to each, deeply mortified at their failure. The first one of these is now, at the age of 19, commanding a Columbia river steamer with an ability rarely exhibited at that age; the second is a leading student in the Territorial University, and the third carried off the prize in a competitive examination. Four or five from Oregon were successively rejected or dismissed, and the last cadet from that State, after maintaining his position in the Academy for two years and a half, by appealing to the Secretary of the Navy against an arbitrary dismissal, resigned in the middle of a term, and is now setting type in this office as a preference. If in view of these facts any partial father of a promising boy who is willing to expend $500 or $600 in the experiment, Judge McFadden has the power to offer him the privilege.

NARROW ESCAPE OF REPORTERS.

Schonchin and Scar-faced Charley Killed!

YREKA, April 18—1:30 P. M.—Mr. Buckmaster just brings the report that Eugene Hovey of Yreka, a teamster, was murdered yesterday, while on his return from the front, by Modocs who had escaped from the caves.

LATER—Hovey was murdered yesterday noon, one mile and a half this side of the peace tent, by a party of ten Indians. His horses were stolen. Hendricks brought the word to Balls. Messengers were warning settlers. The excitement is intense.

Teams are stopped and many horses are suffering from the epizootic on the road.

Buckmaster passed the courier who left the lava beds yesterday morning, with regular government mail and dispatches. He is expected within an hour.

YREKA, April 18.—Dispatches from the lava beds up to 6 o'clock P. M. of the 17th have been received. Our troops have possession of the Modoc stronghold. The Indians have left for the hills south east of the lava beds. The cavalry are in hot pursuit.

The First Sergeant of troop K, First Cavalry, captured a Modoc battle flag. Scar-face Charley and Schonchin have been killed. Fifteen Indians got between the troops in the field and camp, killed Eugene Hovey, of Yreka, scalped him and mutilated his body fearfully, and taking 4 horses and 1 mule and left for the mountains.

Our total loss of troops is five killed and twelve wounded.

Mr. Meacham is improving rapidly.

The Warm Spring Indians were first in the stronghold. They killed and scalped all the wounded they could find.

YREKA, April 18.—Courier arrived from the lava bed at six o'clock this evening, bringing news up to a late hour last night. The Union correspondent says as soon as Sam Watson, who was in company with Mr. Hovey, returned to our camp, southwest corner of Tule Lake, a dispatch was sent by the signal officer to Colonel Green stating this fact.

Soon after, a dispatch was received from the front from Colonel Green to Major Trimble, ordering him to post his men in the most advantageous position. This was immediately done by the Major, and arms were issued to all the citizens; also to 25 Warm Spring Indians, who have arrived since Donald McKay joined Col. Mason on the 12th. After the Major had posted the command, your correspondent took a position about 250 yards in advance of the picket line in a ledge of rocks, and waited for the approach of the Modocs, or orders from Major Trimble.

After remaining in the rocks for about an hour and a half, an orderly from the flag station visited the different posts and told us the Cavalry were coming in on foot and not to mistake them for Indians.

In about an hour thereafter, General Gillem and his aid, Lieut. James Rockwell, came in sight, and we returned with them to camp.

Soon after, troops K and F appeared in sight, bearing with them the medicine flag which has waved in front of Captain Jack's stronghold since his entry into the lava bed, and the

who was found wounded in the cave, as was also a squaw who was captured and turned over to the Warm Spring Indians.

Our side has now five scalps in this fight, and the Indians have only one—that of the boy Hovey, killed this morning. From the officers who came in with the cavalry we learn the enemy have been driven from the stronghold. The lava bed is ours. The Modocs are now guerrillas.

During this afternoon we could see smoke from the south of the lava bed, indicating plainly that the Modocs were travelling toward Willow Springs, on the old emigrant road, or for the country between "Clear" and Goose Lakes. The cavalry will start for the country east of the old emigrant road from Oregon to Fort Crook, and the country east of Tule Lake. Some time this evening I will accompany this command on this scout. Fox, of the Herald, and Attwell, of the Sacramento Record, escaped the fire which killed Hovey by running, several shots being fired at them. It was first supposed they were killed. Fox had the hair cut away above his left ear by a bullet.

The three days fight results in a total loss of 10 wounded, and 5 killed on both wings.

The troops are in excellent spirits and anxious to pursue the Modocs. Part of them occupy the lava bed now and will prevent any of the Modocs from returning. Everything is working admirably and we hope to chronicle the death of the last Modoc in a week.

Too much praise cannot be awarded the officers and men. The news from the front was received at Yreka with great amazement. Citizens will go immediately to the front to get the body of Hovey, and several will volunteer their services against the Modocs.

Dispatches to the San Francisco Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Dispatches just received by Gen. Scofield from the Lava Bed, announce the Modocs driven from their stronghold and fleeing south,—Cavalry in hot pursuit.

A dispatch from Dr. Zeming, in the Lava Bed, says the Modocs have escaped and fled to the hills southwest of the Lava Bed,—Cavalry in hot pursuit.

The First Sergeant of Troop K, 8th Cavalry, captured the Modoc battle flag and killed and scalped Scar faced Charley.

Mr. Meacham is improving rapidly and will get well.

The savages mutilated the body of young Hovey fearfully.

Dr. Zeming says our losses up to the 17th inst. were five killed and twelve wounded.

The correspondent of the N. Y. Times, writing from the scene of the Atlantic's wreck, relates the following:

In one case a woman was seen lying on the seaweed covered rock with her face upturned to the blue sky and grasping in a mother's dead grasp a chubby-faced infant whose lips were still fastened to the fountain whence it had been drawing its supply of nourishment. Some sudden wave had probably swept the two into eternity, while the mother, careful of her child, was in the act of quieting it.

A Frenchman soliciting relief of an English lady said gravely, to his fair hearer, "Madame, I nevaire beg, but dat I have von wife vid several small family, dat is growing very large, und nossing to make dere bread out of but de perspiration of my own eyebrows."

"Mamma," said a wee pet, "they sang 'I want to be an angel' in Sunday School this morning, and I sang with them." "Why, Nellie," exclaimed mamma, "could you keep time with the rest?" "I guess I could," proudly answered little Nellie: "I kept ahead of them most all the way through."

A certain young lady of an inquiring turn of mind would like to have some one explain how it is that a bridegroom pledges himself in the marriage vow to "endow" the bride with all his "worldly goods," and then leave her only one-third of them when he dies. She says she must have it understood that "all" don't mean "one-third," before she promises to obey any man, no matter how many goods he may pretend to own.

Horrible Massacre in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16.—The troubles in Grant Parish arose out of the destruction of parish officers. The Lynch returning board ignored all officers elected by the people of the parish, and Gov. Kellogg filled the places with his appointees. These failed to qualify, and the Governor then ordered the parties originally elected to assume the office. A large force of negroes, instigated, it is said, by several white members of the Kellogg Legislature, armed themselves and took possession of the court house at Colfax. They erected barricades, from which they issued, plundering plantations and stopping steamboats for supplies of provisions, etc.

Meantime the whites of the parish had begun to gather at Colfax to consider what to do. They were joined by whites of the surrounding parishes, and by Saturday there were 150 whites encamped around the Court House at Colfax, in which were several hundred negroes, most of them armed with Enfield rifles. The white leaders of the negroes stopped on board a passing steamer on Friday evening and went to New Orleans, out of reach of danger. The first fight occurred Saturday. The whites, under the command of Hadnot, a member of the Fusionist Legislature, were defeated, but there was no loss of life. On Sunday noon the final battle took place. The barricades were stormed and the negroes were driven into the Court House. The assailants, being unable to oust them, set fire to the Court House, and, as the negroes ran out, shot them down, one by one, to the number of 100. Many were wounded and a few escaped. The whites lost only two killed, including Hadnot, their leader. Several were wounded. At last advices, not a negro was to be seen in the vicinity of Colfax.

Most cases mild. The disease exists in the Fashion stables, Ross's, Allen's, Hopkins', Tattersall's, Sloss', and Benjamin's, and at the Agricultural Park. There are about forty cases of epizootic in the stables of this city. The disease is in a mild form. All the street railroad teams thus far have escaped

The body of Dr. Thomas is at the Powell street Methodist Church, and has been viewed by large numbers of people already. The funeral will take place this afternoon. Gen. Schofield and officers of the Division and Department staffs will attend the funeral. The members of the Mason's fraternity meet at 10 A. M. to take proper action in the premises.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Lieutenant E Dennison, of the U. S. Navy, and son of ex-Postmaster General Dennison, shot and killed himself at noon to-day in this city. From letters found on the body it appears that domestic troubles were the cause of the terrible act. He shot himself through the head. Deceased was about 27 years of age, and belonged to the Saranac. His wife is in the city, and is reported to have just commenced a suit for divorce.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The epizootic has not made much progress since yesterday and is confined as yet to the livery stables

Christian Dolger, waiter in a chophouse, was found dead in his room this evening.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—E. G. Waite succeeded G. W. Howe as naval officer at the port to-day. Walter Mead is Deputy in place of Mr. Begley. Giles M. Gray assumed his position as Surveyor of Port. T. B. Sharp is his deputy

Dr. Merrill, Treasurer of San Mateo, is reported defaulter in the sum of $35,000. He has turned his property over to his bondsmen, and it is said there is more than enough to make the deficiency good.

T. W. Grannis, a private detective, was arrested to-day for embezzlement.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The inquest in the Dennison case was continued to-night. Letters were read from the deceased to his wife and father. He accuses the latter of causing the rupture between himself and his wife. To his wife he writes:

"My own darling—for you are too noble to have deceived me. Love me as you used to love me. I have killed myself in order that our little ones may not suffer. Lessette, my last words to you are: I have been true to you in action, and I love you now as much as any man can love. Your enemies and mine have done this thing. Beware of them in future." (Sign.d) ED.

The jury found that he killed himself under great mental excitement, caused by domestic trouble.

Funeral of Dr. Thomas.

Probably six thousand people viewed the remains of Dr. Thomas at the Powell street Methodist Episcopal Church, between the hours of 9 and 11 A. M. The church was draped in mourning, the coffin covered with wreaths and flowers and the pulpit covered with the national colors. At 11 A. M. Gen. Schofield's staff officers entered the church, Governor Booth, Mayor Alvord, Colonel Jones, Colonel Kelton, and the other pall-bearers occupied seats immediately in front of the pulpit, the staff officers of Gen. Schofield on the left. The following military officers were present: Generals Schofield, Hardie, Simpson, Wilson, Breck and Allen; Cols. Wherry, Sprague, Woods, Mayer, Brady and Currie; Captains Suydenstriker, Smith and Johnson. The body of the church was thronged with people and hundreds were obliged to go away, not being able to even find standing room. After a solemn requiem by the choir Rev. J. P. Hill read an appropriate selection from the scriptures. Fifty-five ministers of the Gospel, including Dr. Patterson of Chicago, were present. Prayer was offered by Rev. T. S. Dun.

Rev. Mr. Shelling read the memorial. He alluded in eloquent and feeling language to the services and the tragic fate of the deceased and of Gen Canby; then reviewed at length the life of the former from his boyhood to the time of his death at the hands of the treacherous savages. "He was," he said, "eminently a self-made man, and earned the high place which he had, by his own energetic efforts in the profession of the ministry." He alluded in feeling language to the last mission of the honored and beloved pastor. Mr. Shelling was listened to with profound attention. An immense cortege followed the remains to their last resting place.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

RED BLUFF, Cal., April 18.—This being the day fixed for the execution of Donahue, the mandates of law were duly carried out by the Sheriff and his deputies, [i. e., he was hanged—ED.] A suitable building had been erected in the jail yard, where some fifteen persons were admitted. At five minutes after 1 o'clock, the prisoner was led to the place of execution. He walked up the steps and on to the middle of the platform with very little or no apparent trepidation. After Father Coleman had ministered to his spiritual weal, and after other formal rites had been gone through with, his limbs were pinioned, and the rope was adjusted. He was then asked if he had anything to say why the law could not be carried into effect. After Sheriff Steele had read his death sentence he replied he had not; but when the sheriff adjusted the rope he requested him to put it under his arms as he did not like it around his neck. [The sheriff complied.] The black cap was then put on when he audibly murmured: "Lord have mercy on me." When at a given signal the drop fell and Donahue was launched into eternity. The fall was some seven feet perhaps, and after hanging 19 minutes Drs. Calloran and Kefferess pronounced life extinct. Four minutes thereafter he was cut down, placed in a coffin and delivered to a committee of the Catholic persuasion for sepulture.

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—The sentence of Robert Cage, convicted of murder, is postponed until the 28th inst.

Ben. C. Truman, a well-known newspaper editor and correspondent, proposes to start a new daily paper in this city about the first of June.

The County Teachers' Institute closed this afternoon. Attendance large and [illegible] and public interest manifested in the cause of education. Compulsory education was favored.

Supt Gamble, W. U. T. Co., and J. J. Valentine, Superintendent of Wells, Fargo & Co., returned this evening from San Bernardino, having made the tour of Southern California. Arrangements for the extension of the telegraph to San Bernardino are understood to be nearly perfected.

BENICIA, April 18.—The Government is sending a large amount of war material to Vancouver arsenal, situated on the Oregon border, whether in anticipation of difficulties, we are not informed. To-day there were shipped from the arsenal (Colonel McAllister commanding) 200 breech-loading muskets, 50,000 cartridges and 200 sets of accoutrements.

MARTINEZ, April 18.—James Carroll was to-day convicted of murder in the second degree for shooting James in a drunken row about a woman, in January last.

Marshall Martin is now on trial for helping Mrs. E. Schuyler to chop her husband up with an ax, near Antioch. The woman is in the Stockton Asylum.

RED BLUFF, April 18.—M. J. O'Donahue, executed here to-day, made no remarks or confession. He had strong hopes to the last. On the scaffold he seemed very weak, but not penitent.

VALLEJO, April 18.—Four houses were entered by burglars last night, but they obtained nothing. Mrs. J. D. Page has entirely recovered from her wounds. The remains of Commodore Watson will be buried at Mare Island Cemetery.

Marshal Bazaine has been interviewed by a correspondent of the London Times. The old veteran seemed to have lost none of his vigor during his eleven months' imprisonment, and answered the reporter's questions readily, and remarked that he should prefer that those who talked about him should do as the reporter was doing. We give a brief extract from the long report of the interview:

I asked him, "Is it true, that during the battle of Gravelotte you had to be sought for at twenty kilometres distance from the battlefield, and that you were found there playing billiards?" "In the first place," replied he, "I do not play billiards, and never have played; then again, what was for the Germans the battle of Gravelotte was for us the battle of Amanvilliers. I was from noon a little in the rear of the lines of Amanvilliers, overlooking the battle field, precisely where a General should be, giving orders during the whole time, and preserving my communications with Marshal Canrobert, who was posted at Saint Privat, and had thrown a portion of his troops into Saint Marie-aux-Chenes, and thus I occupied the only position which I could advantageously have taken up. I did not quit that position until the battle was ended, and there was not a single General capable of commanding an army who would venture to suggest that I should have occupied any other. It is not the business of a General-in-Chief to fight sword in hand, and I had experienced that two days before at Rezonville, where, finding some batteries had been abandoned, I rushed forward, sword in hand, and if in ten minutes later I had not been extricated by vigorous efforts, I should have remained a prisoner in the hands of the Brunswick Hussars." "I hardly dare to ask you, M. Le Marechal, whether it is true, that you dined with Prince Frederick Charles before the surrender of Metz?" "Oh, you may ask me anything. I should prefer that those who talk about me, should do as you are doing. This is what must have given rise to that report; on the 28th I was at Corney with my officers. It was raining; we were all wet through. The Prince was absent; I wished to wait for him. As we were fatigued and harrassed, we were offered a basin of broth. I moistened my lips, in order not to refuse; I do not know whether my officers did as much as that; and two days afterwards it was ascertained that I had been present at a grand dinner given by the General-in-Chief of the enemy's army."

The School Tax Again

In connection with the subject of taxation of this district for school purposes for the current year it might not be amiss to [illegible] the rule prescribed by the State Board of Equalization under the law passed at the last session of the Legislature relating to the assessment of taxes. [illegible] provided that property shall be assessed at its full cash value instead of one half thereof, as has been the custom heretofore. This was the law before, but assessors disregarded it and thereby became the means of [illegible] their half a [illegible]. Now the State Board of Equalization has supervisory control over the entire subject, and there is no question that the rule will be enforced as strictly as practicable and that the assessment of this year will exceed that of last by a very large sum notwithstanding the present and prospective stagnation of business. It was stated at the meeting last Monday evening that the excess of the assessment this year over that of last would not be less than $1 750 000. If such is the case—and we are quite satisfied the estimate is not too large—this will greatly increase the burden of taxation upon a given levy. The State law commands a levy of 3 mills by the county for school purposes and whatever levy the district shall make is to be added to that rate. Suppose the district, adopting the suggestion contained in the report of the Directors, should vote a tax of 4 mills. The entire levy for sustaining the public schools would thus be 7 mills. That is the same rate as that of last year but the burden would be very much greater, because a very much larger amount of money is to be levied upon the same amount of property. Take the estimate of the Directors as to the augmentation of the amount of value to be reported on the assessment roll without any actual increase of property, and make a calculation of the increase of taxation. The tax on $1 750,000 (the increase of assessment) at the proposed rate of 7 mills on the dollar would be $12,250. This is more than 33 per cent in excess of the tax of the year just closed and all who have paid that tax remember how much greater the burden was than it had been in any preceding year.

But aside from the mere question of the burden to be placed on the tax payers, should not this higher assessment enter into the estimates for the levy necessary to keep up the schools? The receipts of the last year from all sources were $16,976 19. This addition of $12,250 00 would swell the receipts of this year, assuming revenue from sources other than direct taxation to be the same as last year, to $59 226 19. It was also stated during the meeting, that there was a sum of from $2 500 to $3,000 coming to the District from the State Treasury—we take it to be from interest on the Irreducible School Fund. Let us for the sake of safety, assume the smaller amount to be the correct one. The total receipts for the current year, on this basis, would be $61,726 19. It will require only $25,000 of this sum to pay teachers during the year, according to the Directors' estimate, and it is certain that the estimate exceeds the actual necessary amount considerably. Where are the other $31,726 19 to go? A little of it for necessary contingent expenses under the best economy, but where the bulk? We have no houses to build or furnish, as we had last year. Is not this margin of $31,000 rather a large amount to pay as expressage for conveying $25,000 from the tax payers to the school teachers? We say again, let the Committee examine the whole subject thoroughly, and report to the tax payers at their next meeting as well the probable expenses of the schools for the year, as all the resources to which the District may look for funds.

The Situation at the Front

The dispatches bring the intelligence that the soldiers "occupy the stronghold of the Modocs." That is very cheering, certainly but where are the Modocs? out of the stronghold, out of the Lava Bed, out of reach. They have eluded the troops and made their way to the mountains, which, for the next six months, are a stronger stronghold than the Lava Bed, and have the further advantage of being well supplied by nature with all that an Indian requires for a campaign of the greatest success—water, game, fish, and hiding places. It is reported that Scar faced Charley and Sconchin have been killed. This is so much. Since it is the only way to dispose of this Indian problem we wish there were more of them with Scar-faced Charley and Sconchin. But Jack is out in the mountains, and his followers are with him. It is not unlikely he will draw to himself all the discontented and evil disposed of his tribe and of any other tribes with whom he may be in communication. To have allowed the winter to pass by, and the snow to melt out of the mountains, before active operations were commenced, is most unfortunate, and the plan that can come nearest making up for that irreparable mistake is that which is now being acted upon—a vigorous pursuit of the refugees by the cavalry. It may be possible to press matters in this way to success before the close of the summer, though such an event is by no means certain.

The Civil Service Reform seems to go on notwithstanding the resignation of Curtis and Medill. Messrs L. O. Graves, Chief Clerk in the office of the United States Treasurer, S J Kimball, Chief of the Revenue Marine Bureau, and members of the Board of Civil Service Examiners for the Treasury Department, have gone South to apply the rules of Civil Service to the Custom Houses and Treasury offices of that section. It is said that President Grant proposes to adhere strictly to the line of policy upon which the first Board was founded as he hinted in his letter accepting the resignation of Medill. The latter gentleman resigned, it will be remembered, because he could not serve on the Board and retain his office of Mayor of Chicago, under a recent order from the President forbidding officers in the service of the United States holding any State or municipal office.

One of the "cheekiest" performances of this wonder growing nineteenth century of ours is that in which the three New Hampshire Congressmen are central figures. These gentlemen, like Mr Dawes, had a political prospect ahead of them at the time they were called to vote on the salary steal and like Mr Dawes, they missed their grand opportunity. There were elections pending in New Hampshire at the time, and these patriotic gentlemen were candidates. They went home and pleaded their devotion to principle in refusing to accept back pay. They were beaten in the campaign and three days after they were in Washington receipting for their share of the salary steal.

NEW PUBLICATIONS

United States Circuit Court Reports, Ninth Circuit A. L. Bancroft & Co, San Francisco. This volume contains reports of cases decided in the Circuit and District Courts for the District of California Oregon and Nevada reported by L. S. B. Sawyer Counsellor at Law the decisions having been rendered by Mr Justice Field of the United States Supreme Court Circuit Judge Lorenzo Sawyer and Judges Deady, Hoffman and Hillyer. A large number of the cases reported are from this District and in many of them questions are decided that are important to the profession of the State especially those relating to the law of real property. The high character of the Court by which the decisions in this volume were pronounced renders comment upon the learning and ability displayed in the decisions unnecessary.

The mechanical work upon the volume greatly surpasses anything in the way of a law book that we have seen for many a day whether issued from a house on this coast or in the East. The paper is of the very best the typography unexcelled and the binding better than the best from New York. The publishers may well pride themselves upon the excellent style in which this book is gotten up.

Half Hour Recreations in Popular Science (Geo. H. Steel & Co Booksellers Portland), is a series of essays lectures and papers on subjects connected with physical and social sciences by eminent scientists of Europe and America among whom may be mentioned Tyndall, Mill Spencer Lecky, Darwin Huxley and many others equally eminent. The work is to be issued in monthly numbers in pamphlet form making it a scientific monthly magazine in fact though scarcely claiming all the features of a magazine. From the number before us which is an essay entitled The Geology of the Stars by Professor A. Winchell of the University of Michigan, we feel warranted in saying this publication will be well adapted to supply that demand for scientific knowledge which is just now so urgent in this country. Price per year $2 50, single numbers 25 cents.

A European correspondent gives currency to the story that the Crown Prince of Prussia—Frederick William—has been made the victim of a poisoning plot. It is a well known fact that the Prince has ever since his attendance at the golden wedding of the King and Queen of Saxony, been suffering from an obstinate disease, the exact nature of which has never been determined by the Court physicians. The opponents of Jesuitism confidently assert that the poison was administered at the banquet on the occasion referred to, and by some of the holy fathers who were there present. The accusation is most unworthy of belief except on the strongest and most indisputable evidence particularly so on account of the enormity of the crime as well the consideration that the parties accused are men of high standing at Rome. The believers in this statement point to the current history of Germany for circumstantial verification of their charges. It will doubtless prove that their claim for credence rests in great part upon the famous hostility between the Prussian Government and the Supreme Pontiff. The announcement is one of startling interest, however and the world will wait in eagerness for the summing up.

A nervous Irish representative from Mallow rose to a question of privilege in the House of Commons the other evening, on an article in the Pall Mall Gazette, which spoke of the Irish University Bill as a measure which "cut the ground from under their Fenian agitation and their traffic in noisy disloyalty." The member for Mallow, after a long philippic against the English press, moved that "the article libelously reflected on the conduct of certain members and was a breach of the privileges of the House." Mr Disraeli thought there was no specific allusion, that the House had better ascertain who the ultramontane members referred to were, before it attempted any interference with the liberty of the Press. Mr Gladstone soothed the lacerated soul of Munster by remarking that the consciousness that the member had done his duty should neutralize detraction. After a hot debate of an hour or more, the motion was withdrawn at the request of the Premier.

A dispatch from Benicia, California, gravely informs the world that the Government is shipping a large supply of muskets and ammunition to Vancouver, "on the Oregon border," and it is suggested whether this is in consequence of the fear of local troubles. This is a specimen of what California people habitually write about Oregon. Vancouver is not in Oregon at all, but in Washington Territory, and not on any border but on the Columbia river in the middle of one of the oldest settled districts on this northwestern coast, and within reach of steamship travel from San Francisco. It is on the border just precisely as Benicia is on the border—a sea port town where the Government has a military depot for the supply of a large district of country with military stores.

A late Washington dispatch suggests that the visit of Secretary Belknap to the southwest has something to do with a rumor that the War Department has been preparing to concentrate troops on the Rio Grande to encourage the Free Zone portion of Mexico to assert its independence. It is hinted that the Secretary goes to sound the disposition of the people of the section referred to. The dispatch says that in any event, an attempted Mexican revolution on the border is probable in anticipation of which some measures will be essential for guarding American interests there—to study which may be the real purpose of the War Secretary's journey.

The N. Y. Times says that the School Board of the Canton of Soleure (Switzerland) has addressed a circular to all the teachers of the canton forbidding the teaching of the new dogma of papal infallibility, and enjoining that all books of religious instruction used in the schools must be submitted to the approval of the Board.

A Paris dispatch of the 11th inst states that up to the 25th of March 1 250 000 000 francs had been paid by France on account of German war indemnity for subsistence of German troops.

Wrangel one of the oldest Prussian field marshals is lying at the point of death.

On the night of the 6th while the Principal Keeper of the New Dungeness Lighthouse M Blake was wiping the outside of the lantern glass, his foot slipped from the railing and he was thrown with his back across the rail hurting him badly. If the fall had been to the ground, a distance of 70 feet (and such a fall was narrowly escaped) the lighthouse would have wanted an other keeper.

Large numbers of Chinamen are leaving Olympia to work on the railroad.

Come to their Senses

The San Francisco papers come to us filled with wholesome recantations of the peace policy arguments which have for months occupied their columns whenever the Modoc question has been discussed. The Call is aroused to a sense of the awful crime of the Modoc as witness the following extract from its leader of the 13th:

> The echoes of Capt Jack's pistol will be a [illegible] cry of revenge from all quarters of the land. [illegible] most ardent [illegible] of the "peace policy" must now see that further tampering with these incarnate brutes is a crime to the country. General Canby's life is a fearful price to pay for such a result but we trust that in the end this devilish deed of the Modocs may be the means of [illegible] much good not only in Oregon, but among the Apaches of Arizona. If anything were needed to convince all people that it is worse than folly to trust or temporize with savages who are by nature utterly incapable of even appreciating forbearance when it is exercised toward them or of keeping the appearance of faith when they believe anything can be gained by treachery surely the murder of a gallant officer and his associates must suffice.

The Chronicle, which for a long time teemed with the grossest, most outrageous abuse of Oregon citizens who protested against the peace policy as dangerous and unjust, is forced to admit the correctness of the prophecies of the Oregon press. It says:

> How impossible it is to treat with Indians as with rational human beings, how unsafe to regard them as other than fiends incarnate, with whom the considerations of conscience and humanity have no weight, this dreadful act of treachery fully demonstrates.

Yet right on the heels of this admission comes the senseless fling that

> There will be found men and journals unjust and mean enough to denounce the Administration, to say and write "I told you so" now that the end has been reached and the Peace Commission found to be in this instance, so melancholy and bloody a failure.

We have no disposition in this sad hour, to indulge in any harsh judgments, but it is to be regretted that the Chronicle did not improve this opportunity for making the amende honorable to such of our citizens as have been slandered through its correspondence. The spirit which dictated the above extracts from the latter journal, are far more mean and unjust than the mere croaking of "I told you so," could be. It is simply a spirit of revenge for the murder of General Canby and Dr. Thomas. Not a word about "fiends incarnate" and "merciless brutes" when Oregon's eighteen citizens were slaughtered on the plains of Southern Oregon. And pray, were not these eighteen lives as precious in the sight of God and honest men as the lives of any number of Peace Commissioners could be? We grieve for the death of General Canby, and our sorrow is sincere, for we had learned to prize his worth and esteem his nobility of character. And for the fate of Dr Thomas we sorrow also. But we say, as we have always said, that the measure of the Modocs iniquity was filled when they ruthlessly massacred those peaceful settlers along Lost river and the shores of the Klamath lake. Their blood has not cried to heaven in vain, and the lesson which cost us so dear has, we trust, been learned beyond the possibility of forgetting. In conclusion, the Chronicle puts some questions, which it fails to answer, by reason of cowardice, perhaps.

> But we have other Indian tribes and other Indian wars. What will the Government do with them? Will it still further temporize? Will it continue to send Christian men among them in the vain endeavor, by gifts, by schools and farms, by blankets and Reservations, to Christianize and civilize the wild Indians of Arizona and the North? Or will the Government now be compelled to turn over the whole race to the War Department, with instructions to lay down for them certain rules to govern them, and in event of their treachery and disobedience, declare against them war? Can the administration listen longer to the teaching that regards these wild warriors as guileless innocents, as wards and pupils of the Government, or will they treat them as a bloody, merciless, savage race—as this act of treachery proves them to be—incapable of Christianity and civilization, and to whom the arts of peace and the pursuits of industry are impossible?

Aleck Stephens Jubilates

The editorial of Alex H Stephens on the compliment paid General Gordon by Vice President Wilson in calling the former to the Chair of the Senate during the last extra session of that body, is a queer potpourri of ancient chivalry and a sentiment of gratitude. Mr Stephens it will be seen, looks forward to the day when the leaders in the late rebellion will be "denoted in history in the rank of self sacrificing patriots," etc. Mr Stephens looks forward to an impossibility. Southern journalists missed a royal opportunity to impress the precept of "peace and good will" upon the unfortunate South, as will be seen by a perusal of the editorial referred to, which is given below.

[From the Atlanta Sun, Ap 8]

EX-CONFEDERATE LEADERS

The courteous compliment paid General Gordon by Vice President Wilson, the other day, in calling this distinguished ex Confederate Chief to preside over the Senate, is extensively noted and variously commented on by the press in all parts of the country. The impression seems to be entertained by many that this is the first honor of the kind bestowed upon ex Confederates in Congress.

This is a mistake, if our memory be not at fault. It is but a repetition in the Senate of the like honor conferred on Gen DuBose by Mr Speaker Blaine, soon after this gallant ex Confederate officer took his seat in the House as the Representative of the Eighth district in Georgia.

The moral of all such compliments should be to cause all ex Confederates, of every grade and class to cling closer to the glorious principles of self government, for which they contended in the day of fratricidal strife, and which principles lie at the foundation of all our free institutions.

These courtesies are but indications of those higher honors which are in store for ex Confederates in days to come who shall prove true to themselves and steadfastly adhere to the vital principles of American constitutional liberty.

With patience virtue intelligence and patriotism on the part of the Southern people, the day is not distant when their "leaders" in the late "rebellion," so called in the language of Andy Johnson will no longer be "branded" with the dishonoring name of "traitors," but denoted in history in the rank of self sacrificing patriots, "consecrated to the admiration of the world, and placed by the side of Washington Hampden and Sydney."

It was, indeed, a proud day for Gen Gordon, and a proud day for Georgia, and a proud day for all the Southern States, when the "leader," in the last hopeless charge in behalf of their cause in the field was (instead of being "branded" as a "traitor") called upon to preside over the embassadors of all the States in Senate assembled.

'Truth crushed to earth will rise again—
The eternal years of God are hers
But error wounded writhes with pain
And dies among her worshippers.'

A subscriber writes from Yreka to the Register, under date of the 12th, as follows: "Paymaster Stone is reported to have said that the Modocs are abundantly supplied with provisions arms and ammunition, and when they are driven out and conquered it will be at a terrible cost of life. Fifty teams were constantly engaged in freighting provisions and munitions of war to the front. Over one million pounds of grain had been secured for the army, at four cents per pound, which has to be freighted one hundred and fifty miles. The Modocs have the needle gun plenty of cartridges, and provisions for three or four months."

Rev Mr Bowers comes to us from the East with a reputation second to none on the Pacific coast. Learned eloquent and witty he cannot fail to highly entertain an audience on a subject so extensive in research and theory. This lecture will be scientific in its character appealing to Geology Astronomy, Chemistry etc but prepared for the masses. It is a refutation of many absurd theories by which skeptics have sought to invalidate the chronology of Moses. Between the claims of true Science and Revelation there will be shown to be perfect accord. This lecture drew the largest house in Salem of the whole course of lectures delivered in Reed's Opera House and received the highest encomiums from the press and people. No one should fail to hear it, if possible to attend.

FUNERAL OBSEQUIES

IMPOSING CEREMONIES HELD OVER THE REMAINS OF THE LATE BRIGADIER GENERAL E. R. S. CANBY — PROCESSION, CIVIC AND MILITARY — REMAINS IN STATE AT THE ARMORY

With the exception of the public demonstrations held over the news of the assassination of President Lincoln no more imposing funeral ceremonies were never before witnessed in Portland than were held yesterday over the remains of the late Brigadier General E R S Canby, whose sudden and tragical death has struck such a chord of profound sorrow throughout the whole country. The funeral obsequies of the dead were held yesterday from his late residence and also from the Armory hall at which place the body remained several hours. These ceremonies were participated in by a very large number of our citizens, and a numerous delegation from the military, officers connected with the Department of the Columbia, soldiers from the garrison at Vancouver and officers of the State Militia.

Gen Canby's remains arrived here on Thursday morning, and were taken at once to the undertakers, where a guard of honor was stationed over them. On reaching Yreka the body was placed in a large zinc coffin surrounded by a wooden box to protect it as much as possible from the long and rough journey, securely packed in ice to stay the progress of decomposition, and closed up air tight. It was thought that in consequence of the time which had elapsed since the tragical event, the warm weather and the long distance over which the remains were brought, that they would be in a condition not admitting of exposure to public view. But on opening the coffin early on Friday morning, preparatory to placing the remains in a metallic casket, the body was found to be in a remarkably good state of preservation

BURIAL SERVICES

About half past 9 o'clock yesterday morning the remains, after being placed in the casket, and hermetically sealed, were conveyed in a hearse, under escort of a guard of honor, to the late residence. Commencing at a few minutes before 11 o'clock, the burial services were held in the presence of the widow and a few immediate friends of the family. The ceremonies were conducted by Rev. G W Izer, of the M E Church, Dr A L Lindsley, of the Presbyterian Church, and Rev T. L Eliot, of the Unitarian Church. In response to an invitation, a number of clergymen were present during the services, among whom were Bishop Morris, Rev Wm. Roberts, Rev Dr G H. Atkinson, Rev John Rosenberg, Rev Isaac Dillon, Rev. J. D Eaton, and others. In compliance with the request of Mrs Canby the services were made as brief as possible. A portion of the burial service was read by Rev Mr Izer, and also several appropriate Psalms. This was followed with a short prayer by Rev Mr Eliot. Selected portions of the Scriptures were next read, followed with prayer by Rev Mr Lindsley, when the services were concluded

MARCH TO THE ARMORY

The ceremonies at the residence being concluded, the remains were deposited in the hearse and the funeral cortege formed to escort the body to the Armory, where it was to lie in state. The procession to the Armory was small, as it was specially requested by the widow that no ostentation be made more than was absolutely necessary, but was composed of many of our most prominent citizens and delegations from the military. The cortege was arranged in the following order: First came the hearse, drawn by two powerful black horses, heavily draped and surmounted with large jet black plumes, which nodded mournfully in the breeze, as if conscious of the weight of sorrow, and the melancholy significance of the scene. On each side of the hearse, in single file were ranged the pall bearers—both military and civic. The military were represented by the following officers of the Department of the Columbia: Col H W Janes, Lieut. Col. Saxton, Deputy Q M General, Surgeon George E. Cooper, Medical Director, Major David Taggart, Chief Paymaster, Surgeon E H Alexander, U S Army, Major H. Clay Wood, Assistant Adjutant General, Major William A Rucker, Paymaster, U S A, Major H. M. Robert, Engineer Corps, U S A. The civic were represented by the following gentlemen: His Excellency, Governor Grover, Hon. Philip Wasserman, Hon. M P Deady, Henry Failing, Esq; C. H Lewis, Esq, Hon Ben Holladay, Esq, B Goldsmith, Esq, J. B Montgomery, Esq. Immediately following the hearse, were twelve soldiers from the garrison at Vancouver, who acted as a guard of honor. Behind this guard came First Lieutenant, of the Second Artillery, Aid de-Camp Louis V Caziarc, and Second Lieutenant H. R Anderson, of the Fourth Artillery, Aid de Camp, in full uniform, followed by several clerks of the Department. To the rear of these came a long delegation of our most prominent citizens and business men. The procession, on departing from the residence, came down Salmon street to Fourth, down that street to Stark, and from thence to the Washington Guard Armory. Arriving in front of the building, the body was removed from the hearse and deposited on a platform near the center of the room. Wreathes of flowers tastily disposed, were placed over the top of the casket, which was appropriately shrouded with the national colors. When the body was placed on the platform, the persons composing the funeral cortege, filed into the hall, to take the last, farewell glance at the features of the lamented dead. The flag which had completely enveloped the casket, was gently folded back, the face and a portion of the chest of the dead soldier, exposed through the glass covering. After a brief delay the doors of the hall were thrown open, and the crowds on the outside were allowed to enter the building in single file to view the remains There of any description to head the procession on its way from the residence to the Armory, and the cortege moved noiselessly forward at a very slow, measured pace. But, notwithstanding, the quiet manner with which everything was conducted, each side of Fourth street was lined with hundreds of spectators, who viewed with profound silence the mournful scene. From every intersecting street the crowds came hurrying on to obtain a view of the procession as it moved toward the Armory, and joined in to swell the throngs which lined both sides of Fourth street

More and more dense became the crowds as the cortege approached the place where the body was soon to repose in state. Every avenue to the Armory was completely blocked up with the moving, jostling throngs, which surged to and fro to obtain a better view of the hearse and the procession following. Guards were stationed at the corner of Second and Stark streets also along the sidewalk from that point toward the Armory, and several about the entrance to the building. Constant vigilance was required on the part of the guards to force back the crowds, and keep the sidewalk and corners open. To compel the eager throng to stay within the designated limits, and keep the center of Stark street open, a number of policemen were detailed, who in conjunction with the guards, prevented a jam and maintained obedience. For a crowd so large we have never observed a more quiet orderly assemblage. It would be no exaggeration to state that the number of persons in the vicinity of the Armory at the time of the arrival of the body, and for two hours subsequent, would exceed two thousand, inclusive of many ladies

LYING IN STATE

As previously announced, the remains of Gen Canby were exposed to public view from 12 o'clock M to 4 P. M. During these hours thousands of ladies and gentlemen passed in and took the last look forever at the noble and familiar countenance of this brave soldier. With the exception of the scarcely perceptible discoloration that the finger of decay had impressed, and of the violent wounds made by the rude missiles of death, which with the aid of surgical skill and science, had not robbed of all their ghastliness, the features were remarkably well preserved. Those who had seen the martyred hero when he moved among us in the full pride and strength of an unimpaired manhood, would recognize at one glance the familiar lineaments of that face, of which it could be truly said, "the gods had set their seal to give the world assurance of a man." Even in his last sleep, after the battle of life was fought, the old veteran who had given to the Government the honorable, stainless service of his maturer manhood for nearly thirty five years, seemed to repose as tranquilly as if taking natural slumber after the fatigues of battle to be aroused at the signal note of danger. A silence almost as profound as death pervaded the room during the time the remains were in state, broken only at intervals by the subdued orders of the sergeant when he gave the command for the guard stationed around the bier to change the position of their arms. So solemn appeared the place, and so mournful the scene, that even the tread of those who first passed the coffin to take a look or a whispered word of comment appeared a most sacrilegious to the dead, and grated harshly on the solemnities of the occasion. Canvas had been tacked down along the hall way to muffle the sound of the feet, and a temporary railing was placed up, for the purpose of keeping the streams of human beings passing in opposite directions from coming in contact. Great labor, pains and time had been expended in draping the front of the building and the interior, to have all the surroundings in appropriate keeping with the melancholy character of the occasion. A constant stream of people poured in and out of the Armory from the time the doors of the Hall were thrown open up to a few minutes of 4 o'clock when the casket was covered with the flag and removed to the hearse

TO THE CEMETERY

The funeral procession did not move from the Armory for the Lone Fir Cemetery until about 4 o'clock. Following the hearse, came detachments from both the Washington and Emmet Guards dressed in full uniform and marching in double file with arms reversed. After these came a number of officers of the Department in carriages and next many citizens in various conveyances. The remains were taken to the cemetery and deposited in a vault temporarily, where they will remain until the arrival of a brother in law of the deceased who was telegraphed immediately after the massacre. He started at once with all possible expedition on the receipt of the terrible intelligence and will arrive here in the course of ten days. It is probable that the body will be sent east on the arrival of the brother in law, and will be interred at Indianapolis, with all the military honors due the rank and station occupied by Gen Canby. The ceremonies here, although of an impressive and imposing character, were conducted in the most private manner, in compliance with the positively expressed wishes of the widow. Had not the announcement been made through the military department, that no parade would be held over the body a larger funeral procession than ever was previously witnessed in Portland, would have followed all that was mortal of Gen Canby to the place of final repose. All the bells of the city tolled at half past 11 o clock, while the procession was slowly wending its way from the residence to the Armory. Conformably to the request of the Committee appointed by the Common Council, all the principal places of business were closed from 11 o clock A M, to 5 o'clock P M, and most of the buildings along First street were heavily draped in mourning in respect to the memory of the departed, and as a token of the sad bereavement which has fallen like a thunder bolt on the whole country. From every available flagstaff floated our national colors and the several Consulate flags of the city. A deep gloom seemed to have settled over the entire city for the day, and everything wore a melancholy aspect, scarcely less than when the martyred Lincoln fell at his post

VEXATIOUS LITIGATION.—The ways of law are devious, and those who rush heedlessly into litigation generally find this to be true. Violators of the law are made to feel the consequences of such infractions, and those who attempt to obtain revenge on another person whom they may happen to dislike for some supposed injury received, through the instrumentality of the law, invariably find they are handling a sort of boomerang which never fails to come back with redoubled force. Laws are for the protection of the innocent, but they seldom lend themselves as instruments for the accomplishment of personal revenge entertained by one person or persons toward others. An instance occurred in the city a few days since as illustrative of this principle. Mrs Bridget Gallagher, a courtesan of decided Amazonian proclivities, had some difficulty with another woman of ill repute, and administered a sound threshing to the frail sister. Miss Kayton, the name of the woman who was assaulted, preferred to appeal to the supremacy of the law, rather than obtain redress at her own hands. A warrant was issued forthwith for the recreant Bridget, and that stalwart virago taken into custody. Bonds were given and she was released. Meantime, procuring through her counsel a postponement of the case, Mrs Gallagher swore out a complaint against Miss Kayton, accusing her of larceny. On an investigation of the charge, it was apparent to the court that Mrs Gallagher was actuated by malicious motives, and a desire to "get even." No testimony being adduced by the prosecution worthy of consideration, the court dismissed the case and taxed the costs of the suit to Mrs Gallagher, which amount to the neat sum of about one hundred dollars. Foiled in her scheme for revenge in this direction, she was compelled to come to trial in the Police Court on Thursday morning. In order to cause delay, and to make the expenses as great as possible for the county, should she succeed in getting clear, Mrs Gallagher demanded a jury, and summoned a large number of unnecessary witnesses. But it all availed her nothing, the evidence was too clear and strong. A verdict of guilty was rendered, and a fine of $10 and costs was imposed by the court. Fine and costs amounted to just $77 50, "the same which" the defendant reluctantly paid and departed disgusted with justice, for of that she had received an even share. Mrs Gallagher's experiments with the law in these cases have proven costly ones, and it remains to be hoped the lessons may have a salutary effect

ARMS FOR DISTRIBUTION.—In response to a telegram from Governor Grover to Senators Mitchell and Kelly, to procure five hundred needle arms for immediate distribution to protect settlers on the frontier, Gen Dyer, Chief of Ordnance at Washington, telegraphed the Governor, authorizing him to immediately draw the arms required from the Vancouver arsenal. Adjutant General Dennison will distribute these arms as follows, when they arrive from the arsenal: 100 stand of arms to the County Judge of Umatilla county, 100 stand to the County Judge of Union county, 50 stand to the County Judge of Benton, 150 stand to Gen John E Ross, Jackson, 50 stand to Salem subject to the order of Gov Grover, 50 stand to be delivered to the City Rifles of Portland. The arms will be forwarded to their several destinations by General Dennison, whenever they can be obtained.

LECTURE TO NIGHT.—Judging from the information we get, the lecture to be delivered this evening at Masonic Hall by Rev. Stephen Bowers, A. M, of Salem, will be one of rare excellence and interest. The subject is one that comes constantly in some of its forms before every thinking mind in the community. Moreover, Mr Bowers has very generously donated the entire proceeds of the evening to the benefit of the Empire City M E Church, a worthy enterprise which, through unavoidable circumstances, became involved. We sincerely hope that all of our citizens will avail themselves of this rare opportunity of being twice blessed—in giving and receiving.

SAN SALVADOR

As the attention of the public has been recently directed to the city of San Salvador, Central America, by the great earthquake by which it was almost entirely destroyed, and which caused the death of about 1 000 of the inhabitants, some particulars in regard to the place may be of interest

Your correspondent visited that city in the spring of 1861, landing at the seaport of La Libertad some 26 miles away. There is no harbor here, only a roadstead, protected by two headlands which form the horns of a crescent. The surf is at all times of the year so high that only barges can land and these only by the help of a rope attached to a large buoy some distance from the shore. On grounding, the male passengers mounted on the shoulders of the natives, and the ladies were carried in chairs supported by a native on each side. At present there are iron piers extending some 800 feet into the sea. A diligence or stage coach, after the French style left on the arrival of the monthly steamers. There is a rail road now. Your correspondent preferred going on horse back. The stages were drawn by five horses—two wheelers and three leaders, the latter all abreast

The old city of San Salvador is situated on an elevated plateau directly at the foot of the volcano of the same name, and is approachable on the sea side by only one road, which leads through a narrow cut in a range of hills so that on that side it is very easily defensible by a small force against one much more numerous. This was one of the primary considerations which the old Spaniards regarded when they located this town. Another indispensable was a copious supply of water, which in this case, is brought by an aqueduct about eight miles from the town of New San Salvador, it was throughs the gutters in the center of the streets and plays in the Plaza on Sundays and festivals. The Plaza as usual, contains the Cathedral, Archbishop's Palace, Governor's Palace, Capitol where the Legislature meet, and barracks for the soldiery. These are built of adobe which in this country is not so well adapted for the purpose, wanting the tenacity which is possessed by the clay used in the city of Guatemala, and on the outside having rather a crumbling appearance. All the streets run at right angles and are paved with cobble stones. The houses are of one story built of adobe in the form of a hollow square with a court yard—perhaps a fountain—in the centre, with windows nearly the entire height of the building, defended by iron cross bars against thieves and burglars. The front rooms are used for parlors or offices, while those on the side are for sleeping rooms, and the kitchen and stables are in the rear. The roofs are covered with tiles of baked clay in the form of a half circle, which are put on in rows, one having the convex surface uppermost, the other the concave, and each row overlapping the other. The insides are hard finished and, among the richer classes, the walls are adorned with pictures, always illustrating some sacred subject, and the paved floor covered partially or wholly with matting

New San Salvador, or Santa Tecla, is about 3 leagues or nine miles away on an elevated plateau. In the year '53 the old city was visited by a severe earthquake, and some of the inhabitants became so terrified that they founded a new town but unlike New Guatemala it has never taken the precedence, but has been only an outlying village

San Salvador is the richest for its size and most enlightened of all the States of Central America. This condition is due in great measure to the fact that it is not priest ridden like several of the rest, more especially Guatemala. The Jesuits have been expelled for a long time, and free schools established and encouraged, so that the standard of education is very much higher. There is also a larger relative proportion of the European element, as evinced in the greater number of large towns, including the capital—such as San Vicente, San Miguel, Sonsonate La Union, all within a radius of 120 miles from the seat of Government. Many of the wealthiest inhabitants have had their sons and daughters sent to the United States and France for their education. On the south side of the city is a river running between precipitous banks forming another natural defense. The Indians mentioned in the late telegram are a warlike race, speaking their own language and living not in the neighboring forests, for there are none in the vicinity of any extent, the country being, like California, supplied with very little wood, but on the neighboring mountains, on the summit of one of which on the direct road to San Vicente is a large town inhabited by them entirely. They are generally well disposed towards travelers and only dangerous on feast days, when they have imbibed a sufficient quantity of aguardiente, the native whisky, or rather rum, made from the juice of the sugar cane. They always go armed with a machete, a very formidable weapon, more like a butcher's cleaving knife than anything else, but they have a great fear of fire arms, and will not attack a traveler who has a revolver displayed at his saddle bow. Previously to visiting the country, a traveling friend advised your correspondent not to carry a pistol, as it would be only a useless incumbrance, and your correspondent was sorry afterwards that he followed his friend's advice. On leaving the city for San Vicente, he happened to be behind a company of friends going to the semi annual fair at the latter place. Toward evening, he was overtaken by the darkness about two leagues from the town on the summit of the mountain where they were all to pass the night. It was St John the Baptist's Day, and the Indians whom he met became gradually more and more insolent, so that he considered it more prudent to stop with his guide at a ranch about three miles from his destination. His friends went on the next morning and he never recovered the distance

The city of San Salvador contained at that time about 20 000 inhabitants. The productions of the country consist mostly of sugar, cochineal, indigo, coffee and tobacco

PORTLAND, April 18, 1873

A number of dry goods boxes emptied of their contents led the public to believe that something new had just been opened, and upon closer inspection it was found that the boxes were addressed to F O'Neil & Co, 95 First street, who had but a few moments before piled up in their store an extensive and varied stock of clothing, gentlemen's furnishing goods, and cloths of fine texture for the manufacture of spring styles in gentlemen's and boys' clothing

The public mind has been somewhat agitated with the Modoc war, an occasional murder or railway disaster, and the dull times and the prospect of buying clothing at a figure not large enough to clean a man to the bedrock. The place has been found where you can buy men and boy's clothing, or gentlemen's furnishing goods, at the very lowest prices. It is at Beck & Waldman's, corner of Front and Washington street, where a full assortment of men and boys clothing, in the latest styles, can be selected from

Don't Sit Around Waiting for Luck.

H[illegible] ye who lie here and moping
Sit dismally twirling your thumbs,
And [illegible] waiting and watching
For something that thus never comes,
You might just as well, foolish mortals,
Expect you'll by lightning be struck;
[illegible] will happen as soon as the other—
Don't stand around waiting for luck.

There's a saying [illegible] and a true one—
(Take courage, [illegible])
With a [illegible] heart so bravely that "Heaven
Will help [illegible] who help themselves."
And [illegible] of you wish for good fortune,
[illegible]
[illegible]
Don't sit around waiting for luck.

You may pine and may mope on forever—
Find fault and deplore your hard fate—
But you'd better remember the proverb
And act on it ere it's too late.
You may pout and may grumble forever
Just so long you will find you are stuck
In the mire of sloth and abasement—
Don't sit around waiting for luck!

There is wealth to be had, go and seek it
And with it get honor and fame;
By the sweat of your brow you can gain them,
And carve for yourself a proud name.
But to do this takes tact and ambition,
Persistency, hope—and some pluck.
Are you ready? then lose not a moment—
Don't sit around waiting for luck.

A YOUNG HERO

"Ay, ay, sir, they're smart seamen enough, no doubt, them Dalmatians, and reason good, too, seein' they man half the Austrian navy, but they ain't got the seasonin' of an Englishman, put it how you will!"

I am standing on the upper deck of the Austrian Lloyd steamer, looking my last upon pyramidal Jaffa, as it rises up in terrace after terrace of stern gray masonry against the lustrous evening sky, with the foam tipped breakers at its feet. Beside me, with his elbow on the handrail, and his short pipe between his teeth, lounges the chief engineer, as thorough an Englishman as if he had not spent two-thirds of his life abroad, and delighted to get hold of a listener (as he phrases it) who "has been about a bit."

"No, they ain't got an Englishman's seasonin'," he continues, pursuing his criticism of the Dalmatian seamen, "and what's more, they ain't got an Englishman's pluck neither, not when it comes to a real scrape."

"Can no one but an Englishman have any pluck, then?" ask I laughing.

"Well, I won't just go for to say that, o' course a man as is a man 'ull have pluck in him all the world over. I've seen a Frencher tackle a shark to save his messmate, and I've seen a Rooshan stand to his gun arter every man in the battery, barrin' himself, had been blowed to smash. But, if yer come to that, the pluckiest feller as ever I seed warn't a man at all!"

"What was he, then?—a woman?"

"No, nor that neither, though, mark ye, I don't go for to say as how women ain't got pluck enough too—some on 'em at least. My old 'ooman, now, saved me once from a lubber of a Portigee as was just a-goin' to stick a knife into me, when she cracked his nut with a handspike. (You can hear her spin the yarn yourself, if you likes to pay us a visit when we gets to Constantinople). But this 'un as I'm talkin' on was a little lad not much bigger 'n Tom Thumb, only with a spirrit of his own as 'ud ha' blowed up a man-o'-war a'most. Would yer like to hear about it?"

I eagerly assent, and the narrator knocking the ashes out of his pipe, folds his brawny arms upon the rail, and commences as follows:

"'Bout three years ago, afore I got this birth as I'm in now, I was second-engineer aboard a Liverpool steamer bound for New York. There'd been a lot of extra cargo sent down just at the last minute, and we'd had no end of a job stowin' it away, and that ran us late o' startin'; so that, altogether, as you may think, the cap'n warn't altogether in the sweetest temper in the world, nor the mate neither; as for the chief-engineer, he was an easy going sort o' chap as nothin' on earth could put out. But on the third day out from Liverpool, he cum down to me in a precious hurry, lookin' as if somethin' had put him out considerably.

"Tom," says he, "what d' ye think? Blest if we ain't found a stoawgy." (That's the name, you know, sir, as we gives to chaps as hides theirselves aboard outward bound vessels, and gets carried out unbeknown to everybody).

"The dickens you have?" says I, "Who is he, and where did you find him?"

"Well, we found him stowed away among the casks for'ard; and ten to one we'd never ha' twigged him if the skipper's dog hadn't sniffed him out and begun barkin'. Sich a little mite as he is, too! I could a'most put him in my baccy-pouch, poor little beggar! but he looks to be a good plucked un for all that."

"I didn't wait to hear no more, but up on deck like a sky-rocket, and there I did see a sight, and no mistake. Every man Jack o' the crew, and what few passengers we had aboard, was all a ring in the fo'c'stle, and in the middle stood in the fust mate lookin' as black as thunder. Right in front of him, lookin' a regular mite among them big fellers, was a little bit of a lad not ten years old—ragged as a scarecrow, but with bright curly hair, and a bonnie little face o' his own, if it had't been so woful and pale. But, bless yer soul! to see the way that little chap held his head up, and looked about him, you'd ha' thought the whole ship belonged to him. The mate was a great, hulkin' black-bearded feller, with a look that 'ud ha' frightened a horse, and voice fit to make one jump through a key-hole; but the young un warn't a bit afeared—he stood straight up, and looked him full in the face with them bright, clear eyes o' hisn, for all the world as if he was Prince Halfred himself. Folk did say arterwards" (lowering his voice to a whisper) "as how he comed o' better blood nor what he ought, and for my part I'm rayther o' that way o' thinkin' myself; for I never yet seed a common street Harab (as they calls 'em now) carry it off like him. You might ha' heard a pin drop, as the mate spoke.

"Well, you young whelp," says he in his grimmest voice, "what's brought you here?"

"It was my step-father as done it," says the boy, in a weak, little voice, but as steady as could be. "Father's dead, and mother's married again, and my new father says he won't have no brats about eatin' up his wages, and he stowed me when nobody warn't lookin', and guv me some grub to keep me goin' for a day or two till I got to sea. He says I'm to go to Aunt Jane, at Halifax, and here's her address."

"And with that he slips his hand into the breast of his shirt, and out with a scrap o' paper, awfully dirty and crumpled up, but with the address on it, right enough.

"We all believed every word on't even without the paper, for his look, and his voice, and the way he spoke, was enough to show that there warn't a ha'porth of lyin' in his whole skin. But the mate didn't seem to swallow the yarn at all, he only shrugged his shoulder with a kind o' grin, as much as to say "I'm too old a bird to be caught with that kind o' chaff," and then he says to him, "Look here, my lad, that's all very fine, but it won't do here—some o' these men o' mine are in the secret, and I mean to have it out of 'em. Now, you just point out the man as stowed you away and fed you, this very minute, if you don't, it'll be the worst for you."

"The boy looked up in his bright, fearless way (it did my heart good to look at him, the brave little chap!) and says, quite quietly: "I've told you the truth, I ain't got no more to say."

"The mate says nothin', but looks at him as if he'd see clean through him and then he faced round to the men, lookin' blacker than ever. "Reeve a rope to the yard!" he sings out, loud enough to rouse the dead, "smart now!"

"The men all looked at each other, as much as to say "What on earth's a comin' now?" But aboard ship, o' course when you're told to do a thing, you're got to do it, so the rope was rove in a jiffy.

"Now my lad," says the mate in a hard square sort of voice, that made every word seem like fitting a stone into the wall, "you see that 'ere rope? Well, I'll give you ten minutes to confess," (he took out his watch and held it in his hand), "and if you don't tell the truth afore time's up, I'll hang you like a dog!"

"The crew all stared at one another, as if they couldn't believe their ears (I didn't believe mine, I can tell ye) and then a low growl ran among 'em, like a wild beast awakin' out of a nap.

"Silence there!" shouts the mate, in a voice like the roar of a nor'-easter. "Stand by to run for'ard!" and with his own hands he put the noose around the boy's neck. The little feller never flinched a bit, but there were some among the sailors, (big strong chaps as could ha' felled a ox) as shook like sheaves in the wind. As for me, I bethought myself o' my little curly headed lad at home, and how it 'ud be if anyone was to go for to hang him, and at the very thought on't I tingled all over, and my fingers clenched theirselves as if they was a grippin' somebody's throat. I clutched hold o' a hand spike, and held it behind my back all ready.

"Tom," whispers the chief engineer to me, "d'ye think he really means to do it?"

"I don't know," says I through my teeth, "but if he does, he shall go first, if I swings for it."

"I've been in many an ugly scrape in my time, but I never felt 'arf as bad as I did then. Every minute seemed as long as a dozen, and the tick o' the mate's watch reg'lar pricked my ears like a pin. The men were very quiet, but there was a precious ugly look on some o' their faces, and I noticed that three or four on 'em kep' edgin' for'ard to where the mate was standin', in a way that meant mischief. As for me, I'd made up my mind that if he did go for to hang the poor little chap, I'd kill him on the spot, and take my chance.

"Eight minutes!" says the mate, his great deep voice breakin' in upon the silence like the toll o' a funeral bell. "If you've got anything to confess my lad, you'd best out with it, for yer time's nearly up."

"I've told you the truth," answered the boy, very pale but as firm as ever. "May I say my prayers, please?"

"The mate nodded, and down goes the poor little chap on his knees (with that infernal rope about his neck all the time), and puts up his poor little hands to pray. I couldn't make out what he said (fact, my head was in such a whirl, that I'd hardly ha' knowed my own name), but I'll be bound God heard it, every word. Then he ups on his feet again and puts his hand behind him, and says to the mate quite quietly, "I'm ready."

"And, then, sir, the mate's hard grim face broke up all at once, like I've seed ice in the Baltic. He snatched up the boy in his arms, and kissed him, and bust out cryin' like a child, and I think there warn't one of us as didn't do the same. I know I did, for one.

"God bless you, my boy!" says he, smoothin' the child's hair with his great hard hand. You're a true Englishman, every inch of you, you wouldn't tell lie to save your life! Well, if it be as yer father's cast ye off, I'll be yer father from this day forth, and if I ever forget you, then may God forget me!"

"And he kep' his word too. When he got to Halifax, he found out his little un's aunt, and giv' her a lump of money to make him comfortable, and now he goes to see the youngster every voyage, reg'lar as can be; and to see the pair on 'em together—the little chap so fond o' him, and not bearin' him a bit o' grudge—it's bout as pretty a sight as ever I seed. And now, sir, axin' yer parding, it's time for me to be goin' below, so I'll just wish yer good-night."

Transportation.

They created a Committee on Transportation, in the U. S. Senate, to investigate the subject which is now foremost throughout the west, especially in Illinois—that of securing uniform and reasonable rates for carriage upon railroads. The committee has been authorized to sit during the recess, and report at the next session.

This is a new and very important movement. Heretofore, railroads, being the creation of State legislation, have been left to State supervision. The railroad companies themselves, have, however, made national supervision not only a necessity, but voluntarily removed the chief obstacle to its exercise. They have consolidated their connecting lines in such a way as to bring them under one management, running across the continent. A shipper can bill his goods at Boston for San Francisco, and have them run through without breaking bulk, passing, without recognition or accountability, through many States. No attention is paid to State lines or State jurisdiction. A passenger goes to sleep in Ohio and awakens in Illinois. Indiana has been nothing to him. He does not even turn over in his berth to pay obeisance to the majesty of a sovereign State. So with freights. No inspections, no tolls, no tariffs, no stop nor stay. Railroad presidents, superintendents and ticket agents meet in convention and fix fares and freights, not in deference to the laws, or even the convenience of States traversed by their trains, but according to their own pleasure. And the people of those States, so far from having a remedy for abuses which may be put upon them, have, absolutely, no voice in the matter. As sheep before the shearer—as bound thralls of feudal lords, they are dumb.

State Legislatures have thus far failed to find a remedy for this evil. Our own made an honest effort at a former session, but failed. The subject was novel, the necessity for action apparent, and the power supposed to lie in the State Constitution. But there came an adverse decision. Our Supreme Court by its early action and honest independence, gave warning that our late railroad law would be set aside when brought into the Supreme Court of the United States.

This action was fair and timely, for it gave the Legislature, fortunately in session, immediate opportunity to try again. The trial is now being made. The task has been found difficult. It is doubtful whether the General Assembly will, at this session, provide a sufficient law; and equally uncertain whether other States can do so. There is danger that the corporations will remain undisturbed, or if called into the Courts, that they will have the best of it.

It is a growing consciousness of the inability of single States to deal with the question, that reconciles even the violent State rights theorists to the interference of Congress. It is becoming good law that railroads are national highways, like navigable waters. They claim that character for themselves, when they go to Congress or the Courts, to vindicate their concurrent right to bridge navigable streams, and to put upon water-craft a share of the inconvenience caused by the necessary obstruction. Congress granted such rights, and the courts have recognized them.

The resulting power of Congress to take supervision of railroads, comes naturally enough. The constitutional authority to regulate commerce between the States, comes in and seems to render its jurisdiction, not only necessary, but complete. The committee of which Mr. Windom is chairman, is charged with the duty of ascertaining how, and how far it is necessary for Congress to enter upon this new field of legislation.—Illinois Journal.

A lady who was urging some friends to stay to dinner, felt disgusted when her eight year-old boy came in and said "Mrs. Jones says she can't spare no bread, and Mrs. Brown ain't to home, so I did not get no butter." The friends thought they had better dine elsewhere, and the lady thought so too, but she taught that boy that the way of the transgressors was hard, before evening.

Never Too Late to Mend.

When the stomach is in a state of chronic rebellion against every kind of food and the attending physician with solemn and portentous gravity, declares that such cases of confirmed dyspepsia defy all remedies, do not put faith in his ipse dixit. Indigestion of this obstinate character may be incurable by his prescriptions, but it is not therefore an irremovable fixture in the system. The fact is that the great vegetable invigorant and corrective, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is radically curing cases of this seemingly desperate nature every day. Indeed it is in these malignant phases of dyspepsia which no ordinary medicine can control that its remedial properties are most wonderfully manifested. We say to the long suffering martyr whose stomach is a source of perpetual torment to him, that by the persistent and daily use of this glorious tonic he can not only restore the digestive organs to their full vigor but can keep them in good working order through life. If there is constipation the gentle aperient operation of the Bitters will remove all obstructions, and keep the bowels in a regular and healthy condition. The grand characteristic of this vitalizing and purifying vegetable preparation is that it acts beneficially upon every organ, controlling the liver, reinforcing the nerves, toning the coats of the stomach, promoting a healthy habit of body, relieving the blood of all impurities, clearing the brain and reviving the spirits.

The news from New York, contained in our regular dispatches, reporting a change for the better in financial affairs will be received with much satisfaction by the business community. The dispatch indicates a lower rate for money and that a feeling of confidence is again experienced. We are gratified to see that the recent spasm in New York has had so little effect upon the authorities in Washington, and are encouraged to hope that they will continue to "keep their heads level" for some time to come. Of course the disturbed condition of the money market causes some uneasiness, but as the government is well prepared to protect the public credit, it can afford to let such local disturbances cure themselves, as they are sure to do if let alone. It appears to be properly understood in Washington that the extraordinary demand for gold, occasioned by extravagant spring importations, is the only reasonable cause for advance in its value, and that this cause has not been sufficient to create the [illegible] which has resulted in the existing disturbance. All other causes are supposed to be entirely artificial and the result of brokers' combinations. Advices from Washington say: "It is known that Secretary Richardson's appointment was not satisfactory to many of the prominent Wall street operators, and the theory is held there that these brokers' combinations were merely intended to give him trouble at the very inception of his official duties. With this understanding in view, the government will not interfere except in accordance with its announced programme for the sale of gold and the purchase of bonds. It is believed that this programme, steadily and unflinchingly followed, will in the end overcome any combinations that may be made in Wall street, and restore values to the prices which obtained before Secretary Richardson's promotion."

As we believe in the policy of the Secretary of the Treasury being shaped in accordance with the principles lying entirely outside of the varying demands and fluctuations of the money market, we are glad to observe any indications that he is not to be swerved from his course by any contingencies or crisis brought about by artificial means, or by a course of proceeding on the part of the commercial or business community for which he is not responsible. He may entertain firm convictions of his authority to release any part or the whole of the 44,000,000 of retired greenbacks, but if he sensibly comes to the conclusion that he is not called upon to increase the government indebtedness by such a release, except so far as the immediate necessities of the government absolutely call for it, he may be indulged in his opinion by those who take an entirely different view of the matter, with comparatively little misgiving.

Marine News.

A correspondent of the Olympia Tribune says:

"The following is the number and description of vessels that passed the New Dungeness Light House, Clallam county, W. T., during the quarter ending March 31st:

	Ships	Barks	Brigs	Sch's	Sl'ps	St'rs	Total
January	17	50	6	28	8	41	161
February	12	40	4	29	13	40	137
March	10	48	7	22	25	41	165
Total,	48	148	17	79	40	128	462

We have had some violent gales of wind from the northwest, and the tide has washed away a great portion of the spit, leaving the lighthouse on an island. Mr Horn from Portland, is here to finish the repairs, and make some improvements. The work was badly done by Kirk. It is the intention of Major Robert to commence work on the fog whistle in the latter part of May or the beginning of June. A new Assistant Keeper has been appointed to this Light in the person of Capt. Frank Tucker of Port Townsend."

The ship Dashing Wave arrived at Tacoma on the 15th from San Francisco. At Seattle, on the day before, the schooner W. H. Meyers arrived from the same place, bringing a full cargo, much of which was for Olympia.

WALTHAM WATCHES
IN Heavy Cases.

We have sent great numbers of these excellent Watches to our customers in the Pacific States, and all have given satisfaction. We have for several years sold more American Watches than any other house in the country, either wholesale or retail, and the reason is that our prices are low and we only sell a good article. Our plan is to send single Watches by Express to any place, no matter how remote, with the bill to collect on delivery; to let the purchaser open the package and examine the Watch, and be perfectly satisfied before paying the bill; and we offer, for any Watch that does not prove satisfactory, to

Refund the Money

If you will write for our Descriptive Price List, we will mail it to you without expense, and from it you will see that you can buy a genuine Waltham Watch of us at the lowest possible New York prices, and without any risk whatever. We send as many Watches to the Pacific States that we always have 4, 5, 6 and 8 oz cases on hand, so as to fill orders promptly. When you write, mention that you saw this notice in the Portland (Or.) Oregonian, and if you want reference we can name persons in every county on the coast that have had Watches from us. Do not let distance or your out of the way location deter you from writing for the Price List.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES!
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured before it is too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure them by the most innoxious means, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who in all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of these charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, a disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was ever cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and ample directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and bosses too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his office of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearny street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.
Consultations FREE.
☞ Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian.

And I have made it an invariable rule to advertise in dull times as well as the busiest, long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out, as by keeping my business continually before the public it has secured many sales that I otherwise would have lost."
